Blast from the Past:

Nevada History

Tonopah

Tonopah, Nevada, has a rich history rooted in mining. It was originally an Indian campground before Jim Butler discovered silver there on May 19, 1900, leading to a significant mining boom. The town quickly earned the nickname "Queen of the Silver Camps" due to its mining wealth and became a bustling center for miners and businesses. By the early 1900s, Tonopah was a thriving community, attracting thousands seeking fortune from its rich silver ore. However, the mining industry was often dominated by wealthy Eastern capitalists, who prioritized profit over the welfare of the town and its miners. Today, Tonopah is recognized for its historical significance and tourism, featuring attractions like the Mizpah Hotel and the Clown Motel.

Don't forget about the Jim Butler Day celebrations - May 18th - May 25th!

Stanley “Stan” Arrive: Stan will be joining us as a welder. He previously lived in Fallon. He enjoys hunting and art!

Greer Galt: Greer will be joining us in the processing department. He previously lived in Butte, MT. He worked at the Golden Sunlight Mine. In his free time, Greer enjoys baking, hiking, and painting!
